

ABSTRACT

A method and device to repair fuel assembly structural defects in the top nozzle to guide thimble connection, wherein the device includes a shaft configured to deflect to allow establishment of a structural connectors between a projection and a dimple area of a guide thimble.